C. Hill House
Buckeystown
Private

Circa 1893

The C. Hill House was built circa 1893 after Otho Keller sold the property to the Buckeystown Packing Company. It was built at approximately the same time as the Buckeystown Cannery House to house a worker at the canning company. A number of tenants occupied the building including C. Hill in the 1900's. Although the building has been substantially changed by the addition of stucco material, the original wood shingle roof remains.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The C. Hill House is a small ell shaped two and one-half story stucco over German siding house which faces east from the south side of Manor Woods Road.

The principal facade is three bays wide. The main entrance, a four panel door with plain recessed panel is located in the second bay. Occupying the remaining bays on the first level and all three bays on the second level are 2/2 windows. All windows are framed with architrave molding.

A one story frame entrance porch extended across the front of the building, but has recently been removed. Two applied turned columns remain at either end of the porch on the front elevation of the house. The area where the porch roof was removed exposes the original German siding on the building which is completely covered by a stucco material.

The main block of the building is one room or two bays deep. A two story addition extends to the northwest rear of the building. The addition is two bays wide and two bays deep. A one story shed roofed frame addition extends along the addition on the south side. This porch replaces an original two story open porch which once extended along the south side of the addition.

The entire structure is built on a low coursed limestone foundation and is covered by a flank gable roof with boxed cornice and return. The roof is covered with what appears to be the original wood shingle roof.
